Initial Case Narrative by R. Navar #5697 on 10/03/08 at 1449 hrs.
Total Dictation Time = 7:43 mins.

On 10/02/08, at approximately 1548 hours, I handled an identify theft in reference to a walk in report at the Foothills District Office. I identified Jared Loughner ( DOB *****through his Arizona driver's license.

Jared advised that today, minutes prior, he Googled his name on the Internet and the first search results that popped up were a PeekYou.com where Jared indicated that someone had posted a picture of him when he had long curly hair when he was approximately 16 years old. The other information was a listing from New York. He indicated that there was another link on that website for a MySpace account which showed the name Jared as the profile name, but listed a female aged 29 years old in the city of Schenecthey and the last login was 05/21/07. The profile user did not have any friends listed. It appeared that they had not used the MySpace account. The MySPace e-mail was "myspacedotcomscrewupretard."

Jared said he tried to contact PeekYou about this. I asked him what PeekYou.com was, since I did not have knowledge of it. He said he did not either. He said they sent him a reply back saying that he needed to contact the police in regards to this. He said he did not have any financial loss but he was hoping that MySpace could track the IP address to the account.

Jared advised me that he believed possibly an old school friend named Alex ~~██████████~~, who he believed was 19 years old, who lived somewhere off Hardy but he was not sure, had possibly created these accounts with Jared's name and picture. He still was not sure. I asked him to explain to me how he knew Alex since he indicated he was an old school friend.

I noted that Jared was slow to respond to my questions. He often hesitated as if he was trying to think of an explanation. I asked him where Alex lived. He hesitated for a long time. I advised him that if he did not know he could just say that and that was fine. Jared said he did not know but then indicated Hardy but did not know the cross street.

Jared said that he last had contact with Alex approximately four months ago. He said a few days ago he called Alex and questioned him if he had created the profiles. Alex never answered him. I asked Jared if he questioned Alex further. He said he did not. He then rephrased his statement saying he did not ask Alex if he had created the fake profiles using his information but that he asked Alex if he had his own PeekYou.com profile.

Jared said Alex's cell phone number was *****. I attempted to call this number but there was no answer.

Jared said he had no further information on who could have possibly created the account using his picture. The MySpace account just had the user name Jared, it did not have any personal information. He said that the link came up with his picture from PeekYou.com. I provided case information to Jared. He told me he could not provide me with anything further in regards to this. His concern was that he wanted a police report because he was concerned about trying to get jobs and having employers pulled this up and see someone using his identity on their profile. This concluded my contact with Jared.

I then went to my patrol vehicle and ran Jared's name. It immediately showed his driver's license return. There was a small message underneath his information showing possible ID theft TriWest, verify document. I called the number that Jared told me was his cell phone number, *****, but did not get an answer and there was no voicemail.

This concludes my involvement.
